

ENDOSCOPIC BROWLIFT: Q & A

What does an Endoscopic Browlift accomplish?

Not only does it raise your eyebrows making you look less angry and making your eyes more open, an Endoscopic Browlift softens the appearance of the lines between your brows.

This procedure often reduces your need for Botox in that area.

Do you lose much hair with the procedure? Is the scarring significant?

There is minimal to no hair loss with an Endoscopic Browlift. The scars are minimal, hidden inside the hairline.

Can an Endoscopic Browlift be performed alone or is it commonly performed with another procedure?

This operation can be performed alone but is often combined with the removal of skin from the upper eyelids and sometimes with a face lift.

Is the operation done as an outpatient? When can I return to work or other public activities?

Yes, the operation is done as an outpatient. Most individuals return to work or social activities with caution after 7-14 days.

If you think you may benefit from an Endoscopic Browlift, please call our office today 912-355-8000 to schedule a consultation with one of our Board Certified Plastic Surgeons.

LIPOSUCTION of the NECK

Before

After

Who is a candidate for neck liposuction?

Patients with a small to moderate amount of fat under the chin who also have a small to moderate amount of excess skin on the neck.

Does the procedure need to be done with general anesthesia?

No. It is often performed with local anesthesia with a mild sedative such as Valium.

Is there a lot of pain after this procedure?

No. Most patients take a few mild pain pills then extra strength Tylenol usually is adequate for the remainder of your recovery.

What is the recovery time for neck liposuction?

The procedure is done as an outpatient with little postoperative pain. One can usually return to work or social activities after 3-5 days.

ANTERIOR NECKLIFT - Especially for Men

Before

After

What options exist for males that are only concerned about excess skin in the middle of the neck?

The simplest operation is an anterior neck lift where the excess central neck skin is removed leaving a small scar down the center of the neck that fades over time.

What is the anesthesia for an anterior neck lift? Is the procedure performed as an outpatient?

IV sedation is usually used for this hour-long procedure. It is performed as an outpatient.

Is the recovery difficult?

No. There is minimal pain after the procedure and most patients return to tennis and golf after 1 month.

LATERAL NECKLIFT

What is a lateral neck lift?

A lateral neck lift is removal of the skin of the neck from the side of the neck usually in front of and behind the ears.

What is the difference in a neck lift and a facelift?

A neck lift improves only the neck. A facelift improves both the neck and the face including the jowls. When one chooses to do a facelift, a neck lift is always done PLUS additional work on your cheeks. A neck lift, however, is focused only on the neck.

Where are the scars from a lateral neck lift?

Behind the ears and sometimes there is a small scar in front of the ear. These scars usually fade after a year.

After

How long is the recovery time until returning to work without heavy lifting?

One usually returns to work after 7-14 days.

Get a SECOND OPINION!

We frequently have patients who come to us for a second opinion. They have already visited another capable plastic surgeon and for peace of mind, would like another opinion.

People often want to know if the recommended reconstructive procedure after cancer or trauma is best for them. They also frequently want an alternative idea about a contemplated cosmetic surgery procedure and whether there are more appropriate options.

We welcome giving such ideas. Between the six plastic surgeons at The Georgia Institute For Plastic Surgery, we have:

- Over 40 years of combined training AFTER medical school!
- Have performed over 50,000 operations
- Have over 75 combined years of practice in plastic surgery.

Saving a Hand, and a Hobby!

This lovely patient was working in her wood shop when a horrific accident occurred. She severely mangled all the fingers on her left hand.

She was seen by other surgeons who recommended an amputation as they felt her fingers were not salvageable. She then immediately came to The Georgia Institute For Plastic Surgery, where we specialize in complex hand reconstructive surgeries.

Thankfully, she had a limb (and quality of life) saving microsurgical repair of her injured fingers and is now back in her beloved wood shop and even crafted hand-made custom wooden pens as a token of her gratitude!
